THE WEEK IN SOCIETY.

The Newport season reached us beight last week. Not that there will be no more entertainments, outdoor sports and social festivities, but that last week was marked by a larger number of handsome entertainments than any previous week of the present eason, or in all probability than any of the coming weeks will produce. Although Newport for a time, during the week, was as completely isolated from the world in general, and New-York in particular, e it has been since modern invention and science have conquered the incompetence of time and space, it was a rather rapid pace that society kept up as it flitted gayly from one engagement to another in an earnest and almost vain endeavor to attend the season can afford. It mattered not if awnings were blown down, or if pools of mud and water made pedestrianism almost an impossibility, the men and women of the fashionable world never dreamed of refusing an invitation on that account. Cottagers and strangers, one and all, on Thursday and Friday found considerable pleasure in watching the magnificent spectacle presented at Spouting dashed on the rocks and sandy beach,

The chief social incidents of the week were the grand ball given by Mr. and Mrs. I. Townsend. Burden, at Fair Lawn, the dance of Mr. and Mrs W. Fitzhigh Whitehouse, Thandors A. Havemeyer's clambake and the tennis tournament. Besides these there were a number of other entertainments, not so elaborate or costly in appointments as the first two mentioned, but of almost equal importance and of fully as much pleasure and enjoyment for those aded them. Fair Lawn, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Burden, was a blaze of glory on the occasion of the long promised and eagerly awaited ball. The decorations in the interior of the house were on the most lavish scale, while outloors there was an equally effective and beautiful display. All the trees on the Marine-ave, side of place, facing the ballroom, were illuminated with a thousand or more fairy lamps of many colors Mrs. Burden received her guests in the handsome Louis XIV, salon, She wore a rich costume of white moire, elaborately embroidered in silver, touched with ruby velvet. A diamond tiara was worn on the head, and ropes of diamonds, beautiful large stones, encircled her neck. Miss Evelyn Burden, for whom the ball was given, assisted her mother. She was attired in white chiffon. Several young women, including Miss Beatrice Bend, Miss Sloan and Miss Whittier, also assisted in receiving. It was, indeed, a bevy of beauties that shop, all operated by electricity carried anybody free surrounded the hostess. Until after midnight the dancing was entirely informal. Elisha Dyer, jr., in the world, having eighty-six engines, about 26,000 with Miss Burden as a partner, began the cotifion, which was a remarkably well-managed and enjoyable one, and was danced by about sixty couples There were five favor figures, and in them the ladies received gold belts, straw fans, with bunches of artificial flowers tied on them with ribbons; satin sachet bags, satin mouchoir cases, silver pincushions, picture frames and rosettes. For men there were sliver whistles, satin pincushlons, meerschaum eigarette holders, leather photograph frames, cigar cases in which were genuine re dias, and other beautiful, useful and unique trifles. Supper was served in the dining-room and large hallway, the guests being seated at small tables. Many really gorgeous gowns were worn brocade: Mrs. Henry Clews was in electric blue satin and tulle; Mrs. Fernando Yznaga, in shot quaint melodies. It was an cujoyable day. entirely veiled in gold net; Miss Hope Goddard was in white satin, with a light blue scarf carelessly draped about the waist; Mrs. Paran Stevens was in claret-colored brocade; Mrs. William Vanderbilt wore a beautiful gown of rich white bengaline, with chiffon scarves; Mrs. Ogden Goelet was in white satin, and Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster was in a gown of cream satin, with bars of moss green velvet and bows. Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse gave a deligntful cotillon, which brough together all the younger element of society. The ertainment was in honor of their daughter, Miss Lilly Whitehouse, who has not yet been introduced. The cotillon was led by Worthington Whitehouse who danced with his cousin, in whose honor the party was given. Mr. Havernever's clambak, was one of the most delightful incidents of the week. The guests, some thirty in all, were conveyed in coaches, driven by the host and Mr. Van Allen, to the grove at Vanclause, a lovely spot, about a dozen | implements. The manufacturers claim that they have miles outside of Newport, where a genuine Rhode

The hostess was in a gown of lustreles; black silk, made with large sleeves and collar of point lace. On Friday William Harriman gave a coaching party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. George who arrived in Newport on Wednesday from Shelter Island. Besides the guests of honor there were on the coach Mrs. Frederick Pierson. Miss Daisy Pierson, De Forest Manice, and the French Ambassador, M. Patenotre. An incident of Friday evening was a sailing and dancing party Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry on board heir steam yacht Electra. One of the important social features of this week which is being much discussed is the surprise domino party, to be given on Tuesday night at Mr. Van Alen's Tudor mansion. The lawn tennis tournament has been well attended, while the polo matches, which have just begun, are exciting great interest among the lovers of this sport. The success of the Casino dances may be considered settled, as the governors have there will be an extra dance on Wednesday even-ings. Preparations are being made for the wedding of Miss Ada Smith and Alfred Kessler, which it has been decided to have celebrated on Wednesday, October 11, at the country home of Miss Smith's mother, at Ballston, in Saratoga County. On account of bereavement in the family of the bride elect's sister, Mrs. Samuel J. Colgate, the wedding will be quiet, only the relatives and a small number of intimate friends going up to the ceremony and breakfast. Paid attendance at the Fair yesterday, 142,170.

During the first six days of the present week the paid attendance at the Fair has been 839,756, and if the stream of Admissions has correctly estimated the attendance for to-day the total for the week will be over 1,000,000. The officials in charge of the Burern of Admissions said that the total for the day would reach 165,000. The threworks programme at night was a good one, and added many thousands to the throng to-day. Vesterday 168,831 visitors paid their way in the grounds. The crowd to-day looked larger. The weather during the early part of the day was extremely pleasant.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE HESPER.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.-The trial of Herman Sharf and Hans Hansen for the murder at sea of Robert Fitzgerald, second mate of the bark Hesper, closed in the United States Circuit Court last night, and the jury found both defendants guilty. Thomas St. Clair, another member of the crew, was convicted on a similar charge some time ago and sentenced to be hanged. An appeal in his case is now pending. The men had formed a plot to murder the officers and take control of the vessel, which was near Tahiti at the time, but they were placed in irons after they had murdered the second mate.
